Prototype:

In early year Rhätische Bahn has made several experiments for transportation and unloading of gravel. For a long time it was necessary to shovel the gravel by hand into position. When the first gravel-wagons appeared, it was much easier to unload the gravel exactly into position by opening the hopper. These wagons were invented by German company Talbot in Aachen. In 1955 RhB bought the first versions of these Talbot-gravel-wagons.

This series of gravel-wagons was brought into service in 1965. The former painting in light yellow changed into a rusty grey-brown during the following years. The wagon OS³/Fd 8658/Xc 9418 has been delivered in redbrown and kept this painting all life long. With the last renumbering into type Xc, the yellow painting was added at those parts of the wagon body, where the lettering was added.

You can choose your variation from all these different types. They are offered all from AB-Modell.

If the grey painting has existed really, is not to be found in our documentations we have. May be this item has no prototype! We have decided to make this variation too, because of a lot of demand of our customers. If you want a grey item, please tell us your preferred road-numbers.
