Pirata-Models

Pirata uses Kato vehicles from their RhB programme for the models presented on this page, and paints and partially rebuilds them. The Pirata models are therefore fully compatible with the Kato models and can be converted to the N standard coupler. The installation of interior lighting is also possible. We offer the Pirata models for both N and Nm gauge.

Prototype

The standard carriages of the first series were the largest coherent passenger carriage procurement of the Rhaetian Railway at the time. The originally green vehicles were repainted red for the 100th anniversary of the RhB, given a silver trim line and an extensive technical block with a large carriage number. The doors remained in the brass-coloured gold tone.

The carriages travelled along the RhB tracks in this livery, especially in the 1990s and well into the 2000s.

Model

Pirata has painted the standard coaches from the Kato range in an exemplary slightly different red colour and the doors in gold. The black door seals and the lettering are printed in silver.

There is one road number for each model variant. The design matches the green EW I from the same company as well as the EW I from Kato.
